

Ants are found all over the world. They live and work together in colonies where every ant has a job.

Some ants find food for the colony. Others guard the door of the colony.