

Mice can hide because they are very small. They are also the same color as their homes.

Most mice come out at night, but they never go too far from their homes.