

They wanted to take the crate home. It would make a neat toy chest. It could hold their skates. It could hold Ray's toy plane and Rose's jump rope.

They brought it home and put it on the back porch. But it didn't look very good. It was old and gray.
“Let's paint it!” said Rose.